

ABSTRACT

Disclosed is a device and system to impart a distortion effect to a digital audio signal generated in response to vibrations of a strings of a stringed musical instrument. A communication adapter may transmit the digital audio signal in data frames over a 5 transmission medium coupled to the musical instrument. One or more bits in at least some of the data frames may be modified to impart the distortion effect to the digital audio signal.